This package

Getting paid every month from members for access to your products of website content is an incredibly profitable method of generating recurring income.

After establishing your own membership community, you can develop credibility, build brand awareness and establish yourself as an authority in your niche. This doesn't happen automatically, but it can be made to happen with very little effort.

After learning the many positive elements of building membership based websites, your next question should be: how can I utilize existing tools and resources to instantly create a powerhouse of subscription based sites in a short amount of time?

This package is a collective resource showcasing quick-start strategies that will guide you to building profitable continuity based websites.

From maximizing conversion rates to subscriber retention, you will cover all of the bases to creating, running and managing a successful membership community.

Whether you have ever set up a membership website before or not doesn't matter. The strategies featured within this guide are simple and straightforward. All you need to do is follow along, step by step, and apply the techniques in sequence.

One of the great things about starting a membership community is you can simply take your hobby, existing specialized knowledge or interests and quickly turn it into a profitable business.

You can even begin developing your membership site on a part time basis, and as it grows, you can consistently add new content as you go, rather than having to spend weeks developing an abundance of content upfront.

Planning for and setting your site up for auto-responders, automated sign-ups, payment processing, automated cancellations, and removing refunded customers from your database is all part of a successful membership website.

By incorporating these strategies into your existing membership website or when creating a new membership website, you will be able to maximize your income tremendously.

It all begins in evaluating the different membership models already available as well as choosing your overall topic. So, without further delay, let's jump right in!

The simplest form of a membership community is quite simply, a newsletter.

"That's Not a membership site!"

Yes it is. There are others we'll get into later but right now we'll dig into the newsletter format to show you the fastest way on earth to see if you have a viable membership base.

I'll take a fictitious subject to show you how this can work. "Cowboys on Motorcycles" That's not as far fetched as it might sound to modern ears. We used to chase wild horses on motorcycles and it was quite effective.

To get members for our membership community the first thing we need is BAIT.

Back when I was cowboying for a living all the truck drivers that brought "feeders" to the ranch wore cowboy hats and cowboy boots. I remember we were all in a restaurant one time and the waitress asked our boss why he never wore a cowboy hat. His immediate response was an angry retort:

"I don't want to look like a truck driver!"

That's okay. Back then it seemed like every kid west of the Hudson river wanted to be a cowboy. Ned Buntline made a fortune writing spine-tingling content for his membership site. I'll pretend there is a fortune to be made providing exclusive information for "Cowboys on Motorcycles."

Like I said, we start with the bait.

I would write an article using the title: "Cowboys on Motorcycles." Inside the article I'd tell how romantic this subject is and hint at some of the things "Cowboys on Motorcycles" are doing today. At the bottom of the article I would write: "The end"

Skip a line and then I would add: "The Author:" I then skip 5 spaces, though I doubt that is kosher. Then I would add: "Lin Stone owns the thousand acre Membership Spread "Cowboys on Motorcycles." where he keeps cowboys posted on the fun, games, rodeo events and future meetings. Readers of this article can sign up for free by writing to LinStone AT talewins.com; Your very first installment will be sent right back to you by return mail.

Now, let's go back to that first step "write an article" -- there are hundreds, and maybe even thousands of article directory web site owners that are ready to devour any subject and promise to offer the articles they collect to other web site owners, like myself, that are searching desperately for material that their members will appreciate. Post to as many article directories as you have time for.

Step two coming up: Write To LinStone AT etc. This should be the email address of an "auto-responder." Do a SEARCH for that term and pick out a supplier that you like – IF you don't have your own domain i.e. Talewins.com

Auto-responders are fancy little pieces of software that will automatically send a letter back to the person that mailed a letter to it. If the applicant mistypes the email address they prefer, it falls to the wayside. Consequently, they MUST provide their correct mailing address to receive your material.

Today, auto-responders can get pretty fancy. Once you get the hang of them, you can do your entire membership community material with them.

Before you go developing your "product" you want to make sure you've got a niche that people want. You can do that by starting a "free membership" newsletter. All the pros that I know brag on AWeber. They've been on the web longer than I have so I suppose they are serving well.

Okay, let's go over this again. Write an article and get it distributed.

Offer a free gift at the bottom that requires an email address for delivery.

IF response is adequate, we're now ready to proceed with Aweber or some other provider. Inside our first return letter we will be providing more information than was included in the article we sent around the world. At the bottom of THAT letter, down close to the signature, we offer them a free membership in your wonderful program in exchange for signing in or on. The arcane terminology for this process is: "OPT-IN." When your new member OPTS IN they are giving you the right to send more information to them until such time as they become unhappy with you and OPT OUT!

Once they have done the Opt-In thingie you can monetize your letters by offering them special packages, preferably packages that are closely related to your main focus. If we take one step back to my original premise, COWBOYS ON MOTORCYCLES, I would offer caps and shirts, and things that identified them as good old cowboys on motorcycles.

These are now friends of yours, so do the soft sell approach.

Now, for the step up to PAID membership premises. Instead of caps and things, offer them an upper tier to your membership package. They've been receiving general info, now you are going to offer them a TURBO PACK that is far superior to what they've already been receiving. When they pay, you simply add them to another mailing list. Another step? Add them to another mailing list. Tyler G. Hicks could keep this thing rolling to seventh heaven. You can too.

There is absolutely nothing wrong with the old mailing list approach to membership dollars. Let's recap,, an offer at the bottom; and it can change every time you mail out. Simple, and effective. Use it.

If you discover a gold mine, and you should keep digging until you do discover a gold mine, then you might, might, want to proceed to having your own domain.

HostMonster provides a whole slew of auto-responder accounts when you sign up to let them host your domain. There is at least 20 and maybe 40 or 50 other services that HostMonster provides. I recommend the firm highly if you already know where you'll be digging up the information nuggets that will keep your members satisfied.

IF you haven't found your niche yet.. I suggest you purchase a much more expensive host package. Yes, instead of $10 per month, this one costs $47 per month. It isn't that much better if all you need is a host for your domain -- so back to HostMonster. BUT, this package delivers a whole herd of complete packages of information, software, books and other matters every other day. This package is so good that there must be thousands of products that I haven't even had time to open up yet, much less to investigate.

You

To begin, you should set up a registration process so that whenever a visitor lands on your website, you are able to capture their name and email address, adding their details to your mailing list (via your autoresponder). The reason why this is so important is that, once you have their information added to your database, you will be able to send out follow ups and broadcasts in the event that they failed to sign up on their first visit.

This is how it works:

Your visitor enters in their information via your membership's landing (or individual squeeze page_ and confirms their request to be added to your newsletter.

In order to entice visitors into subscribing to your mailing list, consider adding in a squeeze page «bribe» such as a free report, or coupon for access to your membership site.

Once a visitor subscribes to your newsletter, your autoresponder kicks in and emails your prospect a welcome email that you have already written and incorporated into your follow up series (you do this within your autoresponder account).

This introduction/welcome email is sent out automatically within minutes of their confirming their request to be added to your list.

Your autoresponder continues to email your subscriber on pre-set dates, according to the system you have set up within your autoresponder account.

You can determine delivery dates and times from your administration panel, and all of the emails you create within your autoresponder account will be sent out to all active subscribers on a regular schedule.

Example: You create 5 emails that are scheduled to be delivered accordingly:

1st Email: instantly sent to your subscriber thanking them for subscribing to your list and provides the offer that you are featuring on your squeeze page or landing page (such as your coupon, download product, etc).

2nd Email: Scheduled to sent out on the third day after your subscriber has confirmed their request, and includes an email offering free content, additional articles or another report.

You should also remind subscribers who have failed to register for a paid account, that their coupon code is set to expire if they fail to use it within a specified time frame.

3rd Email: Scheduled to go out on the 7th day of the sequence, and once again reminds your prospect how they will benefit as a paid member of your site.

You could offer additional free resources, including an overview sheet of the features and benefits associated with your subscription site. You could also consider offering a discount access coupon on a higher level package.

4th Email: Scheduled to go out on the 10th day.. and so on.

The balance that you use, when mixing up free content with promotional based material is entirely up to you, however the more value you give to your list, the easier and faster it will be to develop a relationship with your subscribers, so that they trust your recommendations and look forward to receive future broadcasts. It will also help minimize subscribers from opting out of receiving your emails.

Taking an aggressive approach to email marketing works for some, however for the majority, it's always best to tread carefully, initially focusing on building a relationship with your list, and then doubling that up with promotional offers, or recommendations to affiliate based products.

It's up to you to keep a pulse on your subscriber base, and determine what works best, how frequently you contact them, and whether they respond well to the products you are promoting.

Just don't be afraid to experiment and test out new ideas and innovative ways to consistently grow and maintain your subscriber base.

Here are a few ways to build the highest performing mailing lists, quickly and easily:

Squeeze Page Network

Rather than just constructing one squeeze page, consider creating a network of opt-in pages spanning multiple markets.

List / Email Promotions:

Apart from allowing advertisers to purchase email based advertisements, you could also monetize your subscriber mailing list by sending out promotional emails that showcase affiliate products, as well as your own special offers.

Choosing Your Membership Topic

A membership topic or theme serves as the basis of creating your entire community's platform.

For example, if your membership website is focused on weight loss, all of the content, tools and resources offered to subscribers would be relevant to losing weight, or fitness training.

Topics for successful membership based websites vary, and it's likely that you can find a subscription community model for pretty well any topic imaginable.

However, when first creating your membership website it's important that you focus on overall profitability, rather than simply developing a subscription site around a topic or theme that you are personally interested in.

After all, you want to focus on a scalable community base that can consistently grow and maximize your overall income. Evergreen markets are focused around topics that are unlikely to change and can stand the test of time, and by choosing an overall evergreen theme, you can focus on longevity.

After all, you want your membership site to continue to generate passive income for many years to come.

Another element to keep in mind is the overall size of your target audience and niche market.

- ✓ Will you be able to come up with fresh ideas for future updates to ensure that your website stays fresh?
- ✓ Is your market scalable with the potential for ongoing growth? Can you offer upgrade options to further maximize your income, or are products limited?
- ✓ Is your target audience able to solve their problems quickly (making it difficult to retain subscribers), or is your potential topic able to expand so that you can cater to a large-scale community?

These are just a couple of important questions to keep in mind when choosing your membership theme.

Then, you take it one step further by identifying what you are good at, experienced with or could offer to a potential customer base.

- ✓ Are you experienced with a specific instrument?
- ✓ Are you trained in specific programs or software?
- ✓ Are you experienced with a specific sport?
- ✓ Are you knowledgeable regarding a specialized topic?

Consider creating an e-course, informational series, ebooks, reports or training guides and developing them around a membership website platform.

Keep in mind that themed membership sites are always much easier to manage and monetize than generic communities. You want a strict focus on your membership community, so that you can expand on the topics, yet retain an overall theme.

The more focused your website is, the easier it will be to tap into your niche market and determine exactly what your target audience is interested in, and subsequently, provide it for them.

Once you have created a list of potential ideas, you need to evaluate the overall profitability of the market before going any further.

While it's important to identify what you can personally bring to the table in terms of content development, or material, at the same time you also need to make sure that other people are willing to pay for access to this content.

You can do this by browsing through existing marketplaces like www.ClickBank.com to determine how many products are available there of a similar nature, the communication and delivery channels that are being used for introductory purposes, as well as noting the implied popularity of your potential niche.

Simply by evaluating existing membership sites, you will get a good idea of the different platforms available, as well as what other merchants are currently offering the same target audience that you will be catering to.

Here's a good method: Immediately after checking in, look up at the top for MARKETPLACE and click there.

This will bring you to the following screen:

A screenshot of the ClickBank Marketplace search interface. At the top, there is a search bar with the text 'Search the ClickBank Marketplace'. Below this, there are several search filters: 'Category: All Categories', 'Subcat: All Sub-Categories', 'Keywords: [text input]', 'Sort by: Popularity', 'Product Type: All Products', and 'Language: All'. At the bottom left, there is a 'Show: 10 results per page' option. At the bottom right, there are two buttons: a green 'Go' button and a grey 'Reset' button.

In the KEYWORDS box type in the various search terms that you are already getting traffic, or which you want to get traffic to your membership site for. Right on that same line you will see the word "Popularity" in a "SORT BY" box. Click the tick to the right of the box "Popularity" is in and new options will appear. What you want to sort by "Future $" because this will bring up websites that are designed on a membership format.

Investigate the top mentioned sites and you will create a reference file of existing subscription based sites that exist within your targeted membership markets.

The more thoroughly you evaluate the existing models and successful websites, the easier it will be to create a successful version of your own. Remember though, you are here for ideas, not copying.

You want to search through existing membership sites and communities in order to determine what angle their membership site presents (traditional, coaching, email based, etc), their price structure, affiliate program details (including commissions offered to those who promote them), as well as the specific content that is being offered and the overall value on the site itself.

Is their content original and hard to find?

Are they pricing their subscription reasonably based on existing resources? How can you improve on their existing platform?

Can you expand on the topic's coverage and provide additional resources, tools and information?

This will help you thoroughly analyze the existing subscription sites in your niche so that you can create an enhanced version of your own.

Write down any ideas that you come up with as you evaluate existing membership sites in your niche market, for future reference.

You should also research your market using www.Google.com by entering in relevant keyword phrases that will pinpoint existing subscription sites available, such as: "your niche+membership". To be more precise for illustration purposes, you would type in your keyword and the word membership. Let's do one for gold: "gold buyers + membership" Clear?

Right now there are only four membership sites for gold buyers. Now we want to know how popular gold buyers is.. By typing GOLD BUYERS into the Google search box one letter at a time we see words flashing up below the box. When we get to "gold bu" we see that gold buyers is second, right after gold bullion. (at the present time any way) Now we finish typing in our term and look to see how many listings there are for it – and we see that there are 46,000,000 This means that we probably have a very good chance of stealing a good site. Now, go back and look at the four membership sites to see what you can do better. See how this is done?

Enclosing your search query in quotations will ensure that Google's search engine generates a more accurate listing of results.

You also want to pay attention to the amount of existing competition advertising within Google Adwords sponsored boxes, over on the right hand side.

If you intend on promoting your membership site within Adwords, you will want to first evaluate the average costs based on existing ads and targeted keyword phrases.

Repeat this process on <http://www.CJ.com> and <http://www.PayDotCom.com>

Another method of reviewing potential size of markets is by exploring www.Amazon.com to determine the number of available products focusing on your subject matter. This is a great way to determine whether or not your market is a popular (and profitable) one.

And finally, SPYFU, available at <http://www.SpyFU.com> is a great niche research tool that will provide detailed statistics on keywords as well as existing Adwords advertisers.

All of this research takes a bit of time but it's a critical step in effectively evaluating the theme and topic of your membership site.

If you want to maximize your chances of being successful as a new membership webmaster, you need to give yourself a competitive edge by being thoroughly prepared to conquer your niche and dominate your competition!

Regardless of your overall topic, the one thing to remember is that you must provide specialized information, coaching, or a service that is hard, if not impossible, to find anywhere else.

You want your visitors to clearly see the value in your subscription service, so the more exclusive your content and material is, the higher perceived value it will have (and the more you will be able to charge for access).

The information must be kept updated and it must be relevant to your subject.

Depending on what you are interested in, passionate about and have experience with, you could create a unique subscription based website that caters to people looking to learn a new skill, such as design tutorials, weight loss, parenting, design, or anything else you can think up where an existing market of potential buyers exists .

While you can create a membership website within nearly every mainstream or niche market online, it's important that you speak directly to your prospective market, so that you are identifying their wants and needs and offering them access to a direct solution to their problems.

Desperate buyers are a goldmine for membership webmasters, and by focusing on creating a community that offers information, tools and resources that is delivered on a regular basis, you will be able to maximize your profits while subsequently, maximizing retention rates. For instance, if you could deliver lists of new properties being auctioned off PLUS reveal how old the roof was and how high the taxes were on the two lots on either side and promise them contact with buyers and sellers in their area you would definitely have yourself a winner. As I finally taught one of my daughters.. you hang one gun back, and preferably your best one because if you are a smashing success, there will be rake offs swoop in with duplication of everything you have on the table. It is, in my opinion, best to have to grow your business because then your members will build loyalty to your brand in their own minds.

Google Alerts is an exceptionally useful tool for locating hot topics and current trends that could serve as potential ideas for your membership site. You can access Google Alerts at <http://www.Google.com/alerts>

Welcome to Google Alerts

Google Alerts are email updates of the latest relevant Google results (web, news, etc.) based on your choice of query or topic.

Some handy uses of Google Alerts include:

- monitoring a developing news story
- keeping current on a competitor or industry
- getting the latest on a celebrity or event
- keeping tabs on your favorite sports teams

Create an alert with the form on the right.

You can also click here to manage your alerts

Create a Google Alert

Enter the topic you wish to monitor.

Google will not sell or share your email address.

Yahoo Answers and Yahoo Buzz are also two very useful research tools that will help you come up with killer membership topics based on overall popularity.

With Yahoo Buzz, available at <http://www.Buzz.Yahoo.com> you are able to keep on top of current trends and hot topics.

Just remember to keep your membership's overall theme VERY specific!

If you choose to start a membership site about dogs, for example, you will need to choose a specific breed.

Instead of just dogs, your theme should be; Poodles with sub categories that could include: Tiny Toy Poodles, Miniature Poodles, or Standard Poodles, etc.

If you are really into video or computer games, start a membership site devoted to specific game genres. People all over the world and from every walk of life get really involved with a specific video or computer game and love to talk to others about the game and give each other hints.

There are thousands...maybe millions...of people who love certain crafts and hobbies.

However, those who love to quilt aren't interested in wood working so your membership site should be about a specific craft or hobby itself.

Focused membership websites always out perform generic ones, so keep that in mind when laying the groundwork for your own.

Another thing that can trigger ideas is to stop in at a huge bookstore and sample the magazine offering. Which ones are you attracted to? Which ones would you like to be the editor of? Which ones could you dig into a little deeper and change slightly to have your own slice of the pie?

For example.. you could slide from Woman's Way to Woman's Way With XXXXXX woman's way with WHAT? horses, kids, taxes, peanuts, sports, politics, or a thousand other things that might satisfy your needs. What topic do you WISH I had mentioned? That's the one you should investigate.

Choosing Your Membership Platform

When it comes to building your own membership website, you have an extremely wide latitude in options in terms of exactly how it's structured and designed to run.

For starters, you could choose to create your subscription site based on the traditional format, where subscribers pay a monthly fee to access protected content or directories on your website.

However, there are other equally profitable models used by successful membership webmasters online, including autoresponder based memberships, and even coaching membership models that offer the opportunity for you to earn consistently just for helping those within your market.

Here are the more popular membership models:

Traditional Membership Platform

With a traditional membership website, your subscribers pay monthly for content releases and updates.

By far, this is the most common method of building a membership website, however it does require specific criteria in order to be successful.

Typically, traditional membership sites either offer a low trial price with the cost increasing once the trial is over.

Example: $17 for 7 days, then $37 monthly, set on a fixed term rate, meaning that the monthly costs do not change, allowing a subscriber to be "locked in" to your current price, even if you increase the costs in the future for new subscribers.

Coaching Membership Platform

Coaching websites offer clients coaching services for a set fee. It usually consists of a set amount of time and follow-ups.

With a coaching membership site clients will still have that, but they may also have access to forums to speak with other clients and ask public questions of their coach and other experts. They may also have access to learning material that is specific to what that coach teaches.

With a coaching based membership site, lessons are accessible only to members of the site, with schedules being made available for all members in regards to meeting times, personal coaching sessions and more.

Coaching is available, but not limited to, Internet marketing, career, life, specialized skills coaching and even such subjects as parenting coaching. If you have a skill that you can coach others in you can form a membership site exclusively focused on that topic.

You need to be objective when analyzing your website, however. You need to be conscious and aware of the different types of members you are going to receive, and focus on ensuring that your content and material communicates directly to them.

Think about their skill levels (if you are selling courses, tutoring, coaching, etc).

Coaching based membership websites are extremely easy to set up because unlike traditional membership websites where you'll need to develop and publish content prior to your website launch, with service based membership websites, you can update your website less frequently, creating content and resources as the site grows.

Email Based Memberships

With an autoresponder based membership offer, you are able to set up complete membership sites quickly, with very little start up costs, after all since the majority of the content will be delivered via email, you don't need a dedicated server, or expensive membership software.

You will also want to determine a delivery schedule, making sure to send out the newsletters on the same day each week, for consistency.

When it comes to frequency, the usual choices are daily, weekly, bi-weekly, or monthly.

When you are deciding what your publishing schedule will be for your website, keep in mind the kind of information you will be supplying to your membership and it's "dated importance".

If it is information that changes quickly and regularly, then you are going to need to consider RSS feed alerts, as well as a solid CMS (content management system) that will make it easier in developing, managing and organizing content.

Free Or Paid Platforms

Paid for membership sites are set up by businesses or individuals with the objective of making money by supplying hard to find information, access to specialized data or lists, or instruction in various fields.

Membership sites are owned and operated by people who either own the sites or who are hired by the site owners to monitor and administer them.

The topics for paid for membership sites are even more varied than the free sites and certainly more specialized.

With free memberships, the foundation is usually based on allowing free entry with the intention of selling a membership upgrade. Using teaser options like this, you initially attract a customer with a no obligation, no cost offer.

To gain access to limited information, a visitor to a free membership based website would require supplying an email address, choosing a user name and a password, and potentially verifying their subscription via email (after being added to a mailing list).

In order to gain full access to the site, the same subscriber would have to upgrade their free account to a more feature laden one.

The free membership module works well, especially if you are able to provide useful, relevant content snippets for free with the "meaty" stuff being available only to paid members.

On the flip side with paid membership websites, you are establishing your customer base upfront, and weeding out any freebie seekers from those who are more likely to subscribe on a monthly basis.

The topics for paid for membership sites are typically more varied than the free site model and certainly more specialized.

Choosing Your Membership Software

In order to set up your membership site quickly and efficiently, you will want to look into the different membership scripts and software solutions that are available to you.

While there are many different options available online, you need to ensure that the script you use is powerful, scalable and flexible.

You need to be able to integrate this script into your website quickly and easily, and the software should allow you the freedom of setting up and managing your membership website so that it suits your needs and makes it easy to maintain.

With these programs, you are able to upload files, create a system and launch your site with very limited effort. In fact, with some of the higher end membership scripts, the features extend beyond simple member registration and log in, to enabling you to offer One Time offers, Backend products, bonus specials and even introductory trials, if you are interested in capturing a visitor's information without requiring an immediate subscription.

Be sure to spend some time evaluating each membership script prior to purchasing.

You will want to make sure that the system is scalable and can grow as your membership site does, and that the developer fully supports their script and will be available to assist you should you need it.

Here are a few membership scripts that come highly recommended:

<http://www.easymemberpro.com>

<http://www.MemberGate.com>

<http://www.MemberSpeed.com>

<http://www.LaunchFormulaMarketing.com>

<http://www.RapidActionProfits.com>

<http://www.DLGuard.com>

If you aren't sure how to develop or design a membership website, consider using Wordpress as the CMS (Content Management System) to organize and manage your entire website.

With amember.com, you can purchase an add on module that will seamlessly integrate a membership script with a Wordpress blog, forming a bridge between the main (guest) area and the subscribers only content categories. This is especially good if you already know how to work WordPress. But, WordPress is so easy to learn that you'll soon be sailing through the integration.

Everyone likes the free deal, so the first platform on my list offers a free version, although you do have to look around for it.

The simplest platform of membership sites is to "Protect" a directory on your web site. Those that join will be given the "access code" blogger.com allows you to make your whole blog a secret. To apply different "levels" you can have a second blog, and a third one too.

Regardless of the software that you choose to power your membership site, there are a handful of features that you will most likely want to make sure are included, even if you don't intent on using them initially, odds are, as your community grows you will benefit by being able to incorporate these elements:

1: Timed Release Content

With timed release content, you are able to create and schedule posts, pages and updates so that they appear on scheduled times and dates.

2: Unlimited Membership Levels

Your membership site software should offer you the option of creating various levels (Silver, Gold, etc) so that you can offer extended upgrades and upsells.

3: Sequential Content Delivery - Depending on your setup, you may want to graduate your members from one level to the next, according to their activity perhaps, and give them "perks" for their actions.

4: Autoresponder Integration

It's very important that you are able to capture your visitor and member's information so that you can send follow up emails, promotions and alerts of when your website has been updated or is offering a special offer.

List building is essential in communicating with your members and in maximizing subscriber retention. The more frequently you communicate with your subscriber base with new features, releases and updates, the more likely your members will remain active.

You will want to sign up for an autoresponder account at www.GetResponse.com or www.Aweber.com

5: Integrated Affiliate Program

You also want to make sure that your membership script offers the ability to run an affiliate program, so that you are able to encourage members to promote your website while earning commissions.

6: Simple Scalability

You need to make sure that the membership software you choose will allow for your community to grow, and is equipped and coded to handle large amounts of data and constant activity.

The last thing you want is for your live site to crash simply because your membership software wasn't equipped to handle your website traffic.

One quick and easy method of building full-scale membership sites is by integrating membership software into the Wordpress blogging platform.

This way, your website will be fully optimized for the search engines, while you are able to benefit from a full featured content management solution.

In order to bridge your membership content and seamlessly integrate it into a membership access portal, I suggest using either of these membership based scripts exclusively designed for use with Wordpress:

Wordpress membership scripts:

www.WPWishList.com

Features unlimited membership levels, flexible options, sequential content delivery, control viewed content, shopping cart integration and more.

www.MemberWing.com

With MemberWing, you can instantly set up a membership website using nothing more than Wordpress and this simple plugin.

Tasks that take a lot of time to do by hand can be handled automatically with software and that will free up a lot of your time to do the creative things that make your website profitable.

Once you have chosen your membership website's theme and software, you will need to register a domain name and set up a hosting account that will house your subscription center.

www.NameCheap.com and www.HostGator.com are both affordable options.

Finalizing Your Membership Details

When it comes to membership websites, there are a few things you will want to integrate into your system in order to maximize your profits, and retain subscribers.

One easy way of enticing visitors into becoming paid members is by offering what is known as "teaser content", which showcases snippets of content on the main website in order to entice a visitor into becoming a paid subscriber.

Sites that provide information to find work-at-home jobs, for example, can see the listing of jobs but cannot apply for the jobs unless they are members of the membership site itself.

You will also want to pre-determine your content schedule. This way, you can stay on track with updates and your subscribers will know exactly when to expect new material. If you ever have to change your update schedule, always notify your members so they are aware of any changes.

Adding Value To Your Membership Site

Savvy membership webmasters rarely rely on the subscription income alone when focusing on the membership model as a way of making money online.

Instead, they integrate a handful of extended options that will funnel in additional cash, from the same subscriber base.

For starters, adding in upsells, special offers or upgrade packages are great ways of enhancing your membership site while maximizing profit potential.

For example, you could consider setting up a membership site that offered various levels, starting with Bronze, then upgrading to Silver and finally Gold. Each level would gain access to extended content, special downloads or exclusive offers.

Another method of thoroughly monetizing membership websites is that rather than offer a front end system that is based on a recurring fee, you could instead, offer a flat rate access fee with upgrade options.

For example, your membership site could be priced at $97 entry fee (one time charge) with a monthly rate of $67. What this does is help in customer retention, because if a subscriber cancels their account, they would then have to resubscribe, paying $97 again before being given the monthly discount rate.

You should also consider using pressure tactics, such as time sensitive offers, or limited quantities or spots left within your membership community.

You could also consider offering coupon codes, with only a specific number available before expiring. This will motivate your visitors to take action and subscribe before the offer ends.

Here are some other ways to further enhance your membership site:

Feature An Affiliate Program

You will also want to incorporate an affiliate program into your membership website, so that both visitors and subscribers are able to generate commissions from every referred sale they make.

When structuring your affiliate program, focus on offering a very appealing commission percentage; in order to recruit active affiliates who will help you jump-start your marketing campaigns.

Different companies pay different percentages and amounts for leads and sales. The differences paid for a sale can range from 75% down to 1% depending on the company and the product.

What you decide to pay your affiliates will depend entirely upon what you are selling and to whom you are selling it. A good idea would be to check what other companies selling a product comparable to yours is paying their affiliates.

However, how much you pay your Affiliates really depends on how much your product/service costs, its profit margin, how much you're willing to give up and what action you want to take place.

When running an affiliate program, you will want to make sure that your current membership script or software is able to effectively track all sales and leads, as well as provide detailed information to affiliates (including overall earnings, stats, payment dates, etc).

You could also actively join affiliate programs that are focused on your niche market yourself, and incorporate your affiliate links into a "Recommended Websites" page, so that you are able to maximize earnings by promoting third party products and related websites.

For example, if you run a membership based website focusing on golf training, you could feature affiliate products that include golf gear, advanced lessons, physical books and even video tutorials.

This way, you can maximize your income by featuring affiliate based tools, resources and materials that you are not offering yourself, without having to advertise competing membership websites.

Just make sure that the products or services you are recommending are relevant to your overall theme.

Sell Ad Space Within Your Members Center:

You could also consider offering advertising space within your members center, once your subscribers base has grown.

This way, you could monetize “un-used” space within your members center by allowing third party merchants to promote their products and services to your community.

If you run a members forum, you could also consider integrating promotional banners and allocated ad spaces that feature affiliate based products.

If you run a newsletter (and you should), you could also offer solo ad campaigns to advertisers who are interested in gaining exposure at affordable rates.

Just be sure to adjust your advertising prices as your community grows and your overall ad campaigns become more valuable.

Consider creating a special bundle that features new content, relevant to your membership site, and making it available as an upgrade only to existing members.

Renewals: Recurring income is one of the best parts of running a membership website, and something that many other types of online businesses lack.

Just remember, while first time subscribers certainly breathe life into a membership website, renewals keep it alive.

Make sure to consistently remain active within your community and to do your best to provide high quality, exclusive material to your subscriber base on a regular basis.

Generating Traffic To Your Website

Once you have your membership website set up and ready to launch, it's time to begin generating targeted traffic to your landing page.

Depending on your focus, you should have at least 4 squeeze pages set up that are focused on both your main industry, and sub markets.

The more squeeze pages in circulation, the greater your chances at building massive email lists and maximizing your outreach quickly.

Add To Social Pages

If you have a Squidoo lens, you can now add opt-in pages right into your existing page. It's available as a module, and it's a great way to generate instant traffic to a remotely hosted opt-in page.

Since Squidoo is considered an authority website and carries exceptional weight within the search engines, not only will you be able to generate fresh leads from your opt-in page itself, but you could also add links to your Squidoo lens pages that lead visitors to your other squeeze pages as well.

Hub Pages is also another great method of drawing in new traffic and subscribers. HubPages works similarly to Squidoo in terms of being able to create instant single websites even if you are unfamiliar with HTML.

Exploit Twitter

Twitter has taken the Internet by storm, and from celebrities to niche marketers, hundreds of thousands of people are taking advantage of Twitter's simplistic interface and ease of use. With Twitter, you can grow a following of people who are interested in receiving your messages (referred to as 'tweets').

It's relatively easy to build a following on Twitter just by using their built in search utility (enter in your primary keywords to locate relevant contacts) as well as third party directories and community sites that feature Twitter users according to category.

Here is a quick start overview of how to get started: From the main page of your Twitter account, click on "Find People" from the top navigation menu.

If I were involved in the blogging market, I could enter in the keyword "blogger" or "blogging" to locate users who have entered this keyword into their bio description.

Follow

I can instantly choose to follow those featured within the search results, by clicking on the “Follow” tab.

This is a great way to find people who share the same interests as you, or are likely to be your target audience.

Another way to locate followers is by choosing the second option in your profile area, “Find On Other Networks”.

Another effective method of finding targeted leads and relevant contacts is simply by browsing through the listing of followers from other twitter users online.

You can easily find thousands of potential contacts this way, and can begin following those who are involved in similar activities.

Not only is twitter a fantastic way to build a following but it’s also a great way to develop potential joint ventures and network with other marketers in your niche.

There is also a free directory available at <http://www.Twellow.com> that categorizes twitter users and allows you to instantly search based on keywords relating to your niche or industry.

I've tested the profitability of Twitter both in terms of direct marketing and in building email lists and I was shocked at the results I've experienced every time I developed a 'made for twitter' campaign.

One method that works extremely well is in using twitter's built in DM (direct message) system, that allows you to send out an instant tweet directly to someone who has chosen to follow you.

By including a link to your squeeze page within this direct message, you will be able to maximize exposure to your email list, and grow a large database of subscribers quickly, and at absolutely no cost.

In order to set this up, you will need to register for a free account on <http://www.TweetLater.com>

Whenever someone begins to follow you on Twitter, you can set your account up so that it instantly sends your new follower a welcome message.

Simply create a short message that thanks them for following you, and directs them to your free report via your squeeze page.

(Note: if you are concerned about the time involved in building a twitter following in which to generate traffic to your squeeze pages, consider using a service such as <http://www.Twuffer.com>, which will allow you to schedule tweets so that you are consistently active within the community, even when you aren't present.)

Pay Per Click (PPC) Marketing

When it comes to advertising squeeze pages with PPC, things can get a bit tricky. Since PPC campaigns can be quite costly, if not constructed properly, you could end up spending a lot of money for little results.

Worse, since your squeeze page is focused on generating an email list, rather than directly selling to potential customers, it might take some time before you are able to recoup your advertising costs.

Still, if you are familiar with PPC, it can be a viable option in which to generate instant traffic to a new squeeze page, especially since it's an instant method of driving in targeted traffic to your websites.

If you do decide to use PPC to jumpstart an email campaign, consider using it only as a starting point, and once your campaign is running successfully, and you are consistently building your email list, consider pulling back on your PPC campaigns and focusing on building your subscriber base using free marketing methods instead.

Just make sure that you monitor your results and pay special attention to your costs, versus your overall profitability from your list to ensure that it's feasible to continue with your campaigns.

There are plenty of networks to choose from such as:

Article Marketing

I've been into this before, here is a little bit more. Article marketing is an incredible marketing strategy regardless whether it's for a high end product or in building a mailing list, and if executed correctly, it can be the primary force behind generating consistent traffic to your landing and squeeze pages.

With article marketing, it's all about offering high quality, relevant content that targets your market and propels them into investigating your resource box and visiting your website to find out more about you.

Article marketing is extremely easy to set up, and even if you aren't a proficient writer, you can easily outsource article creation to affordable, high quality writers.

Even if your budget is very small, there is no reason why you can't compile a small package of articles, spanning from 300-500 words in length that are highly targeted and relevant to your squeeze page's topic.

Start out by submitting 3-5 articles every week, and before you know it, your article campaign will generate consistent traffic to your squeeze pages. As you continue to expand on the number of articles in circulation, you will be able to generate more traffic on a regular basis.

Just make sure that the articles you do submit into article directories are exceptionally well written and targeted.

After all, these articles represent you and your brand, and you want your readers to be impressed with the quality as they are likely going to base your other products on the information found within your article content.

Pay attention when constructing your author's resource box (which is attached to each article that you submit.)

This resource box is the only place in which you are allowed to include external links and you want to include a call to action that motivates your reader into clicking on your link and visiting your squeeze page.

You also want to use anchor text whenever possible, so that not only are you able to generate traffic from article directories, but you can also rank for specific keywords within the search engines.

Example:

"Click on the link for more free article marketing tips and techniques".

Then in another article, I could use a different resource box that featured a slightly different keyword anchor such as:

'Click on the link below for a free guide to article marketing for newbies!'

Just the same, be sure to include your primary and long tail keywords within your article's content itself, so that your article content appears within search results for both the main search engines like Google.com, as well as via the internal search utility on the article directory websites.

Here are a few article directories to get started:

I have an all time favorite at generating traffic. I think you'll love the extra twist there that can generate up to 30 back links in a matter of hours. I put it up front because it is also a great way to flood your in-box with articles in your favorite niche. Another way of getting lots of new material to post is to use RSS from blogs that you respect. But by far, what I use most is hitting the sidewalk looking for material from article directories – not what they throw at me, but what I dig out for myself.

Start out here. The first directory that pulls in multiple listings of your article is Zing Articles. Others are:

You Can Also Participate In Giveaways

While this isn't the best approach to take, especially if you are interested in more relevant, targeted leads, participating in giveaways is an easy way to build massive email lists.

I've personally used giveaways as a way to build generic lists, and then by sending out targeted offers to my contacts, I am able to weed out the freebie seekers from active customers, and manage my lists more effectively, but using GetResponse's built in filtering system to unsubscribe a user from one list when they subscribe to another.

What this means, is that you can grow a large email list from giveaways and then offer specific downloads for different niches.

For example, if I was targeting the dog training niche, and weight loss niche, I would grow a quick list by participating in giveaways and then create two separate squeeze pages, one for each of my main niche markets.

Then, I would email my entire (generic) list and offer them specific free downloads.

This filters out your list quickly and easily because as a subscriber joins a new list that is focused on a specific subject (dog training), they are automatically removed from my generic list and placed into a targeted one.

Using this strategy, you can take advantage of the exposure available by joining giveaway offers and special events while still being able to build relevant mailing lists.

When joining giveaway websites, you will be required to offer a free download in the same way that you do on your own squeeze page.

Once you have joined a giveaway as a contributor, you will be able to edit your gift so that it directs potential subscribers to your hosted squeeze page. Subscribers join your list directly, and are not managed by the giveaway host.

Here are a few resources to keep you up to date on future giveaways that you can join as a contributor:

Video Marketing

With video websites like www.YouTube.com, it's never been easier to use the power of viral video to generate fresh traffic to your websites. All you need to do is develop a video or slideshow presentation that highlights your giveaway and directs people to your squeeze page.

Better yet, you could incorporate video tutorials based on your niche market, with a direct link to your squeeze page that appears at the end of the video.

That way, rather than setting up video marketing campaigns that only offer a promotional slideshow, you are adding value to the community by offering useful information that your target audience will appreciate.

Like article content, search engines rank video pages individually, so if you upload a video that receives a good amount of exposure, you will benefit from a higher search engine ranking as well as the direct exposure from the video community itself.

Regardless of the traffic generation strategies that you use, always be sure to properly manage your mailing lists, so that you have an email campaign based around leads and others based about customers.

For instance, your squeeze pages will build lists of leads, however each time one of your subscribers purchases one of your own products, you could feature a different opt-in form on the products thank you page, where your subscriber can join to receive updates, new editions or special bonuses. This will enable you to filter your subscriber over into an email list compiled of customers, and will make it easier for you to manage lists containing leads from those you know are active buyers.

Furthermore, it's exceptionally important that you properly manage your lists for other reasons including the fact that the last thing you want to do is advertise a product to a list of subscribers who have already purchased the product from you, especially if you end up offering it at a lower price or on a special offer.

Always use the filtering options available within your autoresponder account to manage your leads and keep your lists clean and organized.

Remember, the entire point of growing your list is to convert visitors into subscribers, as well as to establish and grow a relationship and reputation within your niche market.

The idea is to over deliver high quality, fresh content so that those still considering joining your membership based website are given every reason to take action and sign up.

Strike a solid balance between free content and promotional based campaigns and you will be able to build a steady funnel of targeted visitors and subscribers.

Conclusion: Final Words

When it comes to building a profitable, highly monetized membership community, you need to remain consistently active. This doesn't mean that you need to dedicate every hour of your day fine tuning and building your community, in fact, you can outsource the majority of the work to experienced freelance writers and developers.

However, your membership community will quickly become a very large part of your brand, and the more you communicate with your subscriber base, catering to their interests, expectations and demands, the easier it will be to effectively grow your community, while retaining subscribers for an extended period of time.

Give your members a true feeling of community spirit by incorporating a forum, live chat, or weekly webinars or teleconferences, and engage and interact with your subscriber base, so that they feel connected to the community.

Whenever possible, always power up your membership site with your own unique, proprietary content, rather than with private label or saturated content. The more exclusive and original your material is, the more valuable it will be to those who pay for access.

Running a profitable membership website takes time and energy, but it can be exceptionally rewarding if you dedicate yourself to consistently evaluating your community and what it is interested in. Don't be afraid to survey your members or just flat out request feedback.

After all, it's their community.
